

Sarah Burrows

Associate Solicitor

Sarah was educated at the University of London and began her legal career in the City of London before moving to a leading provincial practice in the Northwest of England. She returned to Northern Ireland in 1998 and has been working for a local practice prior to joining Cleaver Fulton Rankin in April 2008 as an Associate in the commercial department.

Sarah is well versed in all aspects of corporate/commercial law and has significant experience in corporate transactional work. She has advised on a number of acquisitions and mergers in the province together with a number of MBOs/MBIs. She also advises in relation to company formations, company secretarial services and corporate support and in relation to the formation of Limited Partnerships.

More recently Sarah has advised on the commercial aspects of a number of banking transactions both in GB and in Northern Ireland. She has also assisted in advising on many of the PFI/PPP Projects completed to date in Northern Ireland.

Sarah is qualified to practice as a solicitor in Northern Ireland, England and Wales.

Professional Associations and Qualifications

Member of the Law Society of Northern Ireland
Member of the Law Society of England and Wales
Committee member of the Northern Ireland Company Commercial Lawyers Group

Teaching experience and publications

Occasional course tutor in Company Law at the Institute of Professional Legal Studies.